

Bob Ferguson

ATTORNEY GENERAL OF WASHINGTON

Consumer Protection Division

800 Fifth Avenue • Suite 2000 • MS TB 14 • Seattle WA 98104-3188

(206) 464-7745

ATTENTION: Be aware of Foreclosure Rescue Scams!

Because your home has recently appeared in public records as a property facing foreclosure, you should be on guard for scams targeting those with unpaid mortgage loans or unpaid property taxes so you don't become a victim. Please read the information contained below to protect yourself and your financial welfare.

Many people regularly read the lists of foreclosures obtained through public records and will contact you offering their services. Some of them will claim they can stop the foreclosure or otherwise save your home. Carefully consider any "rescue" offers and seek the advice of a housing counselor before entering into any contract or sale agreement.

Free state-sponsored foreclosure and homeownership counseling is available by calling 1-877-894-HOME or can be found on www.homeownership.wa.gov.

Homeowners also should be wary of offers that purport to be affiliated with the National Mortgage Settlement that the Washington Attorney General's office, along with other states and the U.S. Dept. of Justice negotiated with major servicers. You can find information about the settlement at: nationalmortgagesettlement.com.

The Washington State Attorney General's Office has received complaints regarding some of the businesses who have contacted homeowners claiming they can stop foreclosures and save their homes. Here are some of the problems that have occurred with these transactions:

- The homeowner thought he was getting a loan but was actually selling his home without knowing it.
- The homeowner knew she was selling her home but thought she could buy it back. However, the price to buy it back was so high she could never afford to do so.
- The homeowner paid money upfront to a "foreclosure expert" who offered to negotiate with the bank to save the home. Such experts have offered loan audits or assistance with procuring a loan modification and then kept the money and the bank still foreclosed. Most often, but not always, these offers from are companies (or law firms) that are located out of state.
- The homeowner was approached by an investor promising a quick sale of the house. Instead of actually buying the house, the investor had the homeowner sign an agreement to sell the house to anyone else the investor could find with most of the profit going to the investor.

In order to decrease such practices from occurring, laws have been passed to provide protections to distressed homeowners. Please visit www.atg.wa.gov to find out how you are protected by these laws.

If you believe you have already been a victim of a "foreclosure rescue scam," please call the Washington State Attorney General's office at 1-800-551-4636 or file a complaint with the office online or in writing by going to <http://www.atg.wa.gov/FileAComplaint.aspx>.

Valuable information can also be found at the Department of Financial Institutions at www.dfi.wa.gov by calling 360-902-8700 or 1-877- RING DFI.